Husband, Dad, 9-Time TEDx Speaker
Toronto, Ontario

Blake Fly believes that unexpected appreciation is rocket fuel to create unforgettable relationships in business and life.

He is a husband, dad, entrepreneur and 9-time TEDx speaker. Fly's innovative sales approaches, creative connection strategies and relationship-building methods have gotten him hired to deliver speeches on over 1000 in-person stages and invited to work with companies such as Lululemon, LinkedIn and Microsoft and Disney.

Fly is also the producer of the annual event for business leaders called "Thank U Live." It is the yearly gratitude tradition for leaders to look back on their year, celebrate their progress and appreciate the people in their life, by delivering hundreds of thank you messages to others, before the event concludes.

One of his current passion projects is called "Dads Making History" as a way to help fellow dads connect even more creatively with their kids. It is a community of dads who record mini monthly videos for their children, with the goal of creating a forever folder, to gift all those messages to their children, much later in life.

Fly loses every staring contest he engages in with his 2 toddler children named Koah and Summer, and he has a huge crush on his beautiful bride, Emily.
