John Klein is chief of staff at SEIU Healthcare. Coming from the membership, he cut his teeth in the labour movement when he organized his workplace. Afterwards, John worked on campaigns throughout the United States and Canada before being promoted to lead the organizing program in 2014. Throughout his career, John has never lost his deep sense of gratitude for the opportunities the union has provided, and his experiences have fueled a passion to make sure the union continues to deliver and enhance value for members. Most recently, that passion has expanded to the union's work to build the SEIU Healthcare Training Centre, which is designed to partner with employers to build and maintain the high-quality, sustainable workforce that patients and their families need and deserve.
